

A pipeline object is meant to automate the process of machine learning through a chain of operations. From the first preprocessing till the last postprocessing. The constraint is that each element accept as input the output of the previous.

The tuning objects can either tune a model or a complete pipeline. The tuners should use exposed API to tune the models. Therefore, they are optimized object agnostic. So, if one relation is active, the other is not.